From the Mayor's Desk

Dear Friendly Neighbors,

It is difficult to find the words to express how to feel in today's ever changing environment with the COVID-19 Coronavirus pandemic. Everyone is affected by it. Whether you or your spouse or family members are in the health care field, a first responder, have your kids home from school, have had your business shut down or been laid off, difficult times and challenges are being experienced by all of us.

As your Mayor, the safety of our residents and employees is my number one priority. The Village has implemented a COVID-19 action plan which may be reviewed on the village website at www.rivergroveil.gov. Also, in this newsletter is information on how to sign up for the most up-to-date information from around our village. I encourage all residents to sign up for these alerts, and if you are having problems doing so, please call the village hall and the staff will be happy to assist you. As tough as the challenges before us may appear, we will pull through this together.

In closing, I wish you and your family a Happy Easter, and remember that I am always available to address any questions or concerns you might have.

Thank you, David B. Guerin E-mail (mayor@rivergroveil.gov), follow me on twitter @davidbguerin

Construction Update The Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) is investing in the repair of the Grand Avenue bridge in River Grove. This project has started and completion time is looking like summer 2020. Please be alert to traffic delays and the traffic patterns. IDOT has installed new traffic signals at Grand and River Road. They will be repairing the sidewalks to make them ADA compatible and repairing the cracking concrete and asphalt on the bridges structure. We apologize for any inconvenience this project may cause. We thank you in advance for your patience.

Stuck at Home? Looking for ideas for what to do around the house when you're avoiding crowds in an attempt to stop the spread of the coronavirus? We thought it would be helpful to share these useful ideas!

Check on relatives and neighbors This is a great time to make sure people are okay and safe. Have the kids write a letter or send a card to a relative or person who might need a little pick me up.

Explore your backyard Sure, you're in a de facto state of staycationing already, but make it special. Set up a tent and camp in the backyard. Have the space for a garden? Create one, or at least an area for potted plants. Buy some outdoor games, such as ladderball, cornhole or KanJam.

Redecorate Does your kid want a fun, colorful room that reflects his or her interests? Is your young teen ready to grow out of those bright pink or baby blue walls? Make it happen. Redo some walls, swap out some furniture or shop for a rug or lighting. Plus, can you come up with a more fun excuse to have them completely clean their rooms? It could even be time to reorganize the playroom and set up a system for containing all those toys.

Binge watch This isn't a novel suggestion, but there's simply too much content out there to have possibly watched everything you and your kids want to see. Take a day or two to turn into such a couch potato that your brain gets mashed. Maybe use this as a good excuse to try Disney+ if you haven't already, or any of the numerous streaming services available.

Create a craft Use those art supplies. It could be time to make those bird boxes you were thinking about, or try some painting. There are thousands of crafts you could create from just a few affordable supplies, using your imagination (and maybe Pinterest).

Break out the board games You can get a lot of mileage out of a few smart board games, even if your family members claim they're not competitive. Break out the classics, such as Life or Monopoly, or buy some new ones — it's hard to go wrong. Or you can see if your kids want to design their own games. If your family wants something on the more calming side, there are always puzzles.

Reintroduce reading If your kid complains about how boring reading is, clearly you need to introduce them to some good literature. If you can't visit a public library or bookstore, don't forget about the digital books available on most tablet apps.

Act it out Do you have some budding thespians in your home? If so, put their acting skills and imagination to use by breaking out some old Halloween costumes. Your kids can write their own scripts and act out their parts while in costume.

Keep school skills fresh Help younger kids keep their learning skills fresh with grade-appropriate activities. Look for fun math problem books, science experiment kits and writing prompts for kids, available online. Taken from The Dallas Morning News*

Why the Census Matters to River Grove

Information from the census shapes our communities and influences our village voice in Congress. The census tells us who we are as a nation and what we need. The data collected is used to determine what resources River Grove and other communities need. Funds are provided to state and local governments who then use that money to fund programs and infrastructure needs. An accurate census ensures equal political representation and fair allocation of government resources. For example, census data can determine how many seats each state gets in the House of Representatives, and to redraw the boundaries of congressional and state legislative districts. River Grove relies on population counts to make important decisions about local policies and funding. You should have received a mailing regarding the Census already. However, you may also fill out the Census online at www.my2020census.gov
